

Arthur's cat : Prosper's meal

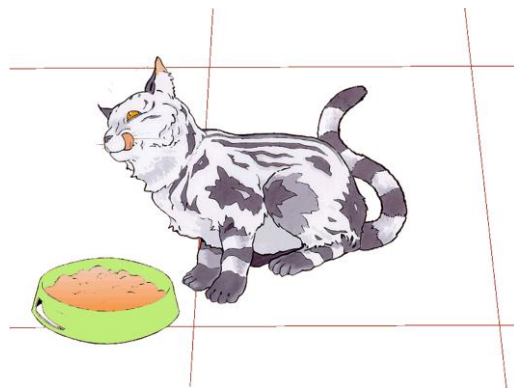

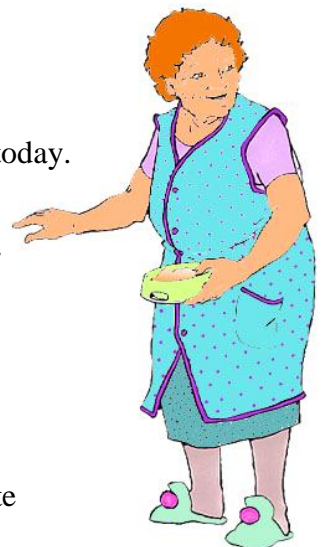

Georgina: Prosper... come for food!

Prosper: I have tried this new box of Freshies today.

Georgina: There you are, my pretty one. You have not had a little treat for today.

Prosper: I am not going to hurry like a vulgar dog. I must smell the aroma of the meat before I taste it.

Georgina: So, Prosper, do you have a problem ? I think you have developed a taste for the lamb today.

Prosper: No, no. Not at all.
What a lovely smell.
I have developed a taste for this new Freshies.

Georgina: Right, Prosper, you have eaten too slowly, I will have to wash the plate soon.

Prosper: Ah, but I have enjoyed my food... Hmmm, yum yum, what a great taste ! I hope she will buy this again. I will be nice to her, and perhaps she will understand that.

Georgina: Don't rub against my legs like that. Go on. Get out of there. There has been something to see in the street. Where are my binoculars ? What has been happening ?

Prosper: Right, if you are going to be like that, I will return to Arthur.

Arthur's cat : Domestic scene (with cat)

Arthur has waited for his wife all morning. He has not had a peaceful morning. He will now be able to sleep, he hopes. But the cat has arrived and has sat on his knee. But what is that down there? Prosper is not comfortable. That is because Arthur has hidden the binoculars under his crossword puzzle.

Prosper: I have wanted to rest myself on my master's knee for a little sleep. But because of the binoculars, Arthur and Georgina have chosen to fight.

'Arthur, you have never liked looking out the window, you have never understood,' says Georgina to Arthur.

'And you,' replies Arthur, 'You have always been more interested in others than in us.'

'What 'us' do you mean?' she asks.

He has not been very precise but she has understood that 'us' is Arthur and the cat.

And off they go again!

So, I have waited too long. I am going for a walk by the kitchen. My two owners have quarrelled all day. Why do they have to do that?

Arthur's cat : View from the balcony

Prosper : Georgina has been looking out the window and Arthur has been completing his crossword puzzles on my back. I have been getting very bored. So, I have decided to go outside as well.

Outside our neighbour, Ms Softly, has been walking her tiny little dog, Puppet. She has not been in a hurry. But look. The dog is stopping. They have met Brutus. The little dog has been considering the danger. And Brutus is alone. Perhaps he has escaped.

But look. I hear Mr. Major coming down the staircase. He has been searching for his dog to catch him.

And just below us on the terrace of Yannis's restaurant the crow that belongs to our neighbour has been waiting for any little crumbs which might fall from the tables. Some clients have been throwing bread for him. It is true that Mr. Blackbird does not feed him well. He has been needing food for years.

At the edge of the window in the middle of the flowers, I have been watching Mr. Major's bird. I have been careful not to fall. The funny bird has been watching and has been throwing me dirty looks. And he has been fluttering about for some time.

I have been teasing the bird a little bit. I have been mewling like a cat calling for help. Now the crow from the aviary above has been throwing himself from his window at mine. Not very kind, this bird. I have been thinking that I should return to my own house.

What a lot of noise in the street. Of course Mr. Major has been calling his dog who has escaped. Ms. Softly has been talking to her little Puppet and has been trying to get it home. It has been raining heavily and I must leave the window.

Looking to my left, I have been watching a girl dressed in black who has been running. I have noticed that she has dropped something. And Mr. Major's dog has been barking after her. And of course Georgina has decided just at this moment to close the window. But I have been listening to them on the staircase. Brutus has been following the girl while Mr. Major has been chasing Brutus. What a farce.
