The enchanting enchanter bewitching witch: Merlin and the fairies

Merlin : Aren't these humans amusing ? I, Merlin, was once human. Oh Yes, I was the official druid at the court of King Arthur. So, I know them very well, my brother humans. I wish I could stop laughing at their little world. But I have twenty centuries under my belt. Beautiful Fairy Vivienne, sometimes I wish she hadn't condemned me to imprisonment in the woods for ever and that I will never die.

Oh the fairies! We know their methods. Not only do they wish they could keep you under their spells, they have the power to do just that. Their power is immense. But wait, I hear someone coming.

The enchanting enchanter bewitching witch: Alix the Fairy

Alix : Merlin! Hold on, hold on. Wait, my dark, handsome fellow.

Merlin : Teaser ! You know very well that I have aged, although I wish I hadn't, and am I white haired just like humans.

Alix : Yes. I am sure you wish you had the power of the fairies.

Merlin : Obviously I wish I could have their power, you little pest.

Alix : Ah yes, Merlin, you are like the humans. You still have all their habits. But I wish you hadn't their smelly feet. Pooh !

Merlin : You deserve a good slap, Alix.

Alix : When I am around people smell lily of the valley. I am sure you wish you didn't smell like an old bear.

Merlin : Huh! I wish I could have the respect that the fairies receive. And they are very bad mannered !

Alix : You have lost respect, Grandad. Go to the devil! Spirits like me have our nature and humans have theirs. That is it, no matter how much you wish it could be different. So, to the good spirits ! Goodbye !
